

The Ocean

The ocean is a never ending blue
A place of tranquility
Bonding the lands like glue
A free, no charge unique marine zoo
When untouched a form of sterility

An endless void
On the land it wages war
With many boats it has indeed toyed
When it extends its border many lands have been destroyed
It has been the subject of many folklore

Alas it has been maimed by pollution
Many heads it has indeed sent spinning
It has been the reason for animals evolution
Sometimes even providing a false illusion
The end, you realise is just another beginning.
